WHO WANTS TO BE A MUSIC MILLIONAIRE—TAKE 3 Main Library on March 8 & 11

Did you know that many musicians got their first big break by winning a radio contest? How many times have you thought, “I could do that” when you see someone performing for the first time, and never tried? Who Wants to Be a Music Millionaire: Take 3 can help get your questions answered and put to rest those qualms you may have as you hear from experts in all aspects of the local music business, from rap to pop.

The free, two-part mini-series takes place at the Main Library, 800 Vine Street (Huenefeld Tower Room, 3rd floor), on Saturday, March 8 and Tuesday, March 11. Hosted by The Cincinnati Enquirer's music critic Larry Nager, the program will include a chance to play a demo tape or perform live, and the ins and outs of starting a musical career.

Saturday, March 8, 2:00-5:00 p.m.

The IT Factor: Cincinnati Music Edition (Play a demo tape or perform live)

This is your big chance. You're invited to play a demo tape or perform live (any type of music) for our panel of local musicians, producers, reporters, and songwriters. They'll offer you an instant, on-the-spot evaluation of your music. (Tapes, CDs, or live performance are limited to one minute each. The Library does not have a sound system, amplifiers, turntables, or other equipment. No other equipment will be allowed, so keep it simple.)

Tuesday, March 11, 7:00-9:00 p.m.

I Fought the Law (Questions answered about the music business)

Have you ever wanted someone to tell you how the music business works? Would you like to learn what to avoid as you start your career? Then this is your chance.

Our panel of lawyers and producers will answer your questions about the music business, covering topics from starting your own record label to protecting your songs.

Space is limited, so please register by calling 369-6955 or 369-6971.
