Meet Baseball Legend Joe Nuxhall at the Main Library (December 4)

Joe Nuxhall was the youngest pitcher in major league baseball when—as an applecheeked 15-year-old—he faced feared Cardinal slugger Stan Musial. And the kid from Hamilton was so good at both basketball and football that baseball was not even his best sport. Noted sportscaster Greg Hoard unveils the famous pitcher-turned-broadcaster in a new biography, Joe: Rounding Third and Heading for Home (Orange Frazer Press). Meet Joe and the author of this heartwarming portrait of one of baseball’s most loved figures at the Main Library (800 Vine Street) on Saturday, December 4 at 2:00 p.m. (south building, first floor Atrium).

Joe is both a nostalgic picture of baseball in the last half of the twentieth century and an inspiring story of the American dream: A boy from simple circumstances, through persistence and hard work, becomes an enduring legend. A booksigning will follow the program. Purchases of the book can be made at the Library Friends’ Shop. Information: (513) 369-6945.
