Paintings by Jose Luis Nunex

Price Hill Branch Library
3215 Warsaw Avenue
(513) 369-4490

Painting is a visual creation that deals with beauty or any kind of emotional expression. ---Artist Jose Luis Núñez

Jose Luis Núñez began painting when he was a teenager in his native Mexico City. His work was highly influenced by Rembrandt's Man with the Golden Helmet. "It made a deep impression on me and ever since, my love for Baroque painting has been great," he said. Mr. Núñez is exhibiting a sampling of his work at the Price Hill Branch Library through October 15.

Besides the Baroque painters, some of the other artists that he admires include Honoré Daumier, Gustave Moreau, Joaquín Soroya, John Singer Sargent, Frederick E. Church, and Lawrence Alma-Tadema. He also likes the works of Latin American painters Siqueiros, Claudio Bravo, Remedios Varo, Carlos Araujo, Rafael Cauduro, Roberto Matta, and Ricardo Martinez.

Núñez apprenticed under visual artists Mario Castro and Demetrio Llordén in Mexico, and Andrea Chimello in Brazil. At the National Autonomous University of Mexico he studied etching and engraving while obtaining a Bachelor's Degree in Western Philosophy. His love for philosophy motivated him to take graduate courses in Contemporary Western Ethics.

Mr. Núñez likes to paint diverse subjects that reflect his broad interests in art and life. Although he has done some abstract works, most of his paintings are in the realistic tradition. In addition to working primarily with oils, he also uses watercolors and acrylics. After living in Brazil for three years, Mr. Núñez now resides in Cincinnati.
